

Press release – 20th September 2010

Charmouth's Fortnam Smith and Banwell to host fourth event as part of Macmillan's World's Biggest Coffee Morning

Fortnam Smith and Banwell, team estate agent in the charming village of Charmouth on the East Devon/West Dorset Jurassic coast, is taking part in the World's Biggest Coffee Morning 2010 to help raise vital funds for Macmillan Cancer Support.

The staff at the well established and highly respected office will throw open its doors with an invitation to residents of the village as well as clients old and new, friends and family, colleagues and associates to join them with home-made cakes and coffee from 10am on Friday 24th September.

The 2010 Coffee Morning will be the fourth annual event held by the agency on behalf of Macmillan. The last three events held by the Charmouth office raised around £200 each. However, the staff hope that this year's event will be bigger and better again.

Guests will be in with a chance of winning prizes, kindly donated by fellow businesses within the village, in a raffle and local Community Police Officer; PCSO Mark Jones will be helping to serve up the cake. Every penny raised by the agency and its guests at the coffee morning will go to Macmillan, which provides invaluable support to those affected by Cancer and their families.

Judy Fellingham, negotiator at the busy agency, said: "We love taking part in Macmillan's World's Biggest Coffee Morning – it's a great way to meet those who live in and around the village and to catch up with loyal, current and future clients as well as friends and family, colleagues and other traders. It really is enjoyable and highly worthwhile as Macmillan is such a good cause. We're looking forward to seeing plenty of guests drop in for tea and coffee on the 24th – everyone is welcome."
