Moor2Coast on BBC1

Stephanie Kaye, Sales Negotiator at Moor2Coast, team estate agent in Yelverton, Devon, recently appeared in three episodes of BBC1's popular Homes Under the Hammer series.

In the programme - the BBC's most successful show in the 10am slot - presenters Martin Roberts and Lucy Alexander follow the progress of properties bought at auction and renovated. Filmed last summer, Stephanie was one of two local estate agents invited to appear on the show, each visiting three properties and giving their opinions and market valuations.

Stephanie visited a cottage in Bere Alston, a three-storey town house in Tavistock and a beautiful property in Lamerton, all of them purchased to become homes. She said: "The cottage was originally in a poor state but the new owners had been doing it up as their cash flow allowed, the town house was renovated as a business move and the property in Lamerton had been totally refurbished in a contemporary style for the new owner to relocate to."

Stephanie, who has four years local estate agency experience, continued: "To be involved in the making of Homes Under the Hammer was an interesting experience. It was seen by many in our area and created a lot of interest from both buyers and sellers."

Moor2Coast Estate Agents opened its doors in 2009 and has established an excellent reputation for providing professional, honest and impartial advice on all aspects of buying, selling and letting property along with a selection of associated and supporting services including conveyancing and surveying via the team network.
