team one of first to integrate with new Google Property Portal

Google is probably the biggest search engine in the world, and estate agents across the UK are eagerly awaiting the anticipated launch of the giant's new Property Portal, expected to be introduced early this year.

team Association's IT partners have once again proven that team is at the forefront of cutting-edge technology, having already established an integration platform with the site, which means that team estate agents will be one of the first, if not the first estate agency group in the UK to integrate listings into Google's new portal – and it will happen immediately the Google Property Portal is launched.
